HUGE PARADE BY MYSTIC SHRINE AT CAPITAL

Riot of Color as Many Thousands March Streets For Three Hours

WASHINGTON, June 5. — Twenty-five thousand nobles of the Mystic Shrine passed in review before Noble Warren G. Harding of Aladdin Temple, Columbus, Ohio, this morning, in one of the greatest and most colorful parades that ever marched down the avenue from the capitol to the White House and the "Garden of Allah," where the president and "Sunny Jim" McCandless, the order's imperial potentate, held forth.

One hundred and ten bands kept the nobles in step. Seventy-five Oriental bands brought a breath from the "hot sands." Sixty drum corps filled in the momentary interims and seventy-five glee clubs raised their voices in praise of the Shrine, the president and the national capital.

Resembles Rainbow

The parade of the Shriners more than anything else resembled the rainbow. Each of the 140 temples presented a slightly different color arrangement in the uniforms, but all were alike in that they presented the brightest and most vivid colors.

The burning desert sands of ancient Arabia were no hotter than the sizzling asphalt of historic Pennsylvania avenue as Nobles of the Mystic Shrine joined in the greatest parade ever staged by the order.

Scores of Shriners, burdened with their heavy, colored plush regalia, had to retire from the line of march during the trek down the famous old avenue from the capitol to the White House, where President Harding sat in the reviewing stand, returning the salutes of the marchers.

Spectators Give Up

The heat was so intense that even the spectators, who lined the avenue by thousands, were uncomfortable and many of them voluntarily forsook long cherished seats in order to escape to cooler surroundings. Heat waves shimmered and danced down the avenue ahead of the marchers, while the music of 110 bands and sixty drum corps reverberated from the capitol to the executive mansion.

The parade was one of the longest in history. Starting at 9:30 a. m. only half of it had passed the reviewing stand at 12:30 p. m. Up to noon the police had given first aid treatment to two score of the marchers who had been forced to fall out. Of these, according to the police, only one was in a serious condition, George Barnard, of Acca Temple, Richmond, Va.

Features were many in the trek down Pennsylvania avenue. Impressive sheiks passed with their camels or astride pure bred Arabian mounts. Each patrol boasted of at least one feature calculated to draw praise or amusement.

President and Mrs. Harding and General Pershing occupied the Mystery Deepens in U. S. Officer's Death

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Announcement in Tokio that the body of Lieutenant-Colonel Earl H. Ellis would be buried in the Caroline islands, where he met an unexplained death on May 12, only served today to deepen the mystery surrounding his untimely end.

Although nearly a month has passed since the distinguished marine officer met his death in the "forbidden islands," that are under Japanese mandate, no word has yet reached Washington as to the cause of Colonel Ellis' death. First reports that he had been "accidentally killed" have neither been confirmed nor denied.

Spirit Of Fraternity Among Nations Hope Of Harding, Shriners Hear

By KENNETH W. CLARK
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 5.—A wish that the spirit of fraternity that is embodied and taught in the "lodges" of America might be transplanted in all the nations of the world, was uttered here today by President Harding, in an address of welcome to the imperial council of the Shrine convention.

"I wish somehow," said the president, "that we could have fraternity among nations, as it is taught in America among men. I do not mean to employ sign, grip and password, which afford an appealing mystery to our relationship, but the insistent demand for just dealing, the respect of rights of others, and the ideals of brotherhood recited in the golden rule, and the righteous fellow relationship which every man knows his God approves.

End of Warfare

"Under such a reign of fraternity cruel human warfare would never come again."

The president wore the red fez of the Shriners as he spoke, surrounded by the council, gay in their colorful trappings of Shrinedom. His hearers were limited to those of the imperial council, meeting in a downtown hotel. He had just finished reviewing 25,000 Shriners in one of the most colorful parades ever staged on historic Pennsylvania avenue.

Without mentioning names, but with a significance that was not lost upon his hearers, the president declared that fraternal orders must be just in order to survive. Also, he declared, they must stay within the bounds of the law.

Big Difference

"Secret fraternity is one thing," he said, "secret conspiracy is another.

"I will have said enough if I suggest that men lose their right of fraternal hearing when they transgress the law of the land.

"I like the highly-purposed fraternity because it is our assurance against menacing organization. In the very naturalness of association, men band together for mischief, to exert misguided zeal, to vent unreasoning malice, to undermine our institutions.

"This isn't fraternity; this is conspiracy. This isn't associated uplift; it is organized destruction. This is not brotherhood; it is the discord of loyalty and danger to the public.

Future Secure

"But, so long as twenty millions of Americans are teaching loyalty to the flag, the cherishment of our inherited institutions and due regard to the constitutional authority and the love of liberty under the law, we may be assured the future is secure."

Extolling Masonry in the highest terms, the president declared there was nothing in its organization or ritualism that could not be spoken aloud to the world and command admiration from those who heard ti.

MRS. TOWER TO BE BURIED THURSDAY

Funeral Services at 11 o'Clock in M. E. Church Postpone Meetings

Representatives of every civic, religious, social and educational organization in the city will be included in the large company of friends who will gather Thursday morning at 11 o'clock at the First Methodist church to pay final tribute to Mrs. Alphonso W. Tower, whose sudden death occurred Monday morning at her home.

Arrangements for the funeral services are being made by the Jewel City Undertaking Company.

There has never been more shocking news brought to residents of Glendale, than that yesterday telling of the sudden death of Mrs. Tower at the family home at 214 East Park avenue. Prominent in social, religious, civic and club affairs, she possessed a wide friendship not only in Glendale but in neighboring cities, and news of her death was almost unbelievable to her many friends, many of whom had been with her in the past few days, and several of whom had talked with her on the telephone an hour or so before her death.

Postpone Luncheon

Among the organizations in which she was an active member and leader were the Tuesday Afternoon club, Chapter L, P. E. O.; College Women's club, Eastern Star, First Methodist church, Southern California Chapter, Alphi Phi Sorority alumnae. These organizations will all be represented by large delegations at her funeral, and many pre-summer gatherings arranged by them for this week have been postponed in memory of Mrs. Tower.

The annual meeting, luncheon and election of officers of the College Women's club planned for this Saturday will not be held until Saturday, June 16, because of the sudden passing of Mrs. Tower, who had served as program chairman of the club since its organization last fall.

In Tuesday Afternoon club circles Mrs. Tower's death has brought great sadness. She had

World's Record For Heat Prostrations At Capital

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 5.—What is believed to be a world's record for heat prostrations at a public event was established here today, when the police estimated at 1:30 p. m. that more than 350 persons attending the Shrine festivities had been treated at hospitals, station houses and emergency first aid stations throughout the city.

The heat was terrific. Most of those affected were in the uncovered stands and lined along Pennsylvania avenue, or in the crowd of thousands that milled along the avenue line of parade.

PREPARE FOR PRESIDENT HARDING'S JOURNEY

Officials Complete Plans for Executive's Western And Alaskan Trip

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Plans for President Harding's long trip west to Alaska were gone over finally at the White House today by Walter F. Brown of Ohio, Claudius Huston of Tennessee, and many officials, who are making the actual arrangements. Announcement of the definite arrangements will be made in a few days.

Brown, a close personal friend of the president, expects to leave for St. Louis and the West late tonight, where, as advance representative for the presidential party, he will make arrangements for speeches, trains and routes. He will not go to Alaska, but will remain on the coast, making arrangements for the California visit.

Harding's Guide

Huston, who has a wider knowledge of Alaska has been selected to act as Mr. Harding's guide while in the northern territory. In addition, officials from the departments of, commerce, agriculture and interior will assist the president in making a study of actual conditions obtaining in Alaska with a view to working out remedial measures for presentation to congress.

The presidential party of about fifteen members, including Mrs. Harding and Secretaries Wallace, Hoover and Work, will leave Washington on the afternoon of June 20 for St. Louis, where the first formal address will be made.

The party will then go through Kansas to the Rocky Mountain states, thence up the Rocky mountain pleateau to Montana and Portland, Ore. After spending the Fourth in Portland, the party will embark on the navy transport Henderson for Alaska. The Henderson is now on the way to the coast, with a special navy band on board.

Then to Panama

Returning to the mainland in about three weeks, Mr. Harding will spend a short time along the Pacific coast and then board a shipping board steamer for Panama and Porto Rico, where he will be the guest of the people of the island. Ten principal addresses will be made en route to the coast and at least three after he returns from Alaska. Numerous impromptu and informal speeches also will be delivered, from train platforms, at meetings and at dinners.

Secret service operatives already have been despatched to the West and Alaska to complete arrangements for the president's protection.

Mrs. Harding is looking forward to the trip with keenest anticipation, she told friends today. While the president and the first lady are away, the executive mansion will be completely renovated.

Double Tragedy Ends Love Chase as Suicide Follows Murder

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—His love which had blossomed at first sight spurned, Juan Verzell, 35, today shot and killed Miss Maria Acuna, 22, pretty Spanish milliner, and then shot and killed himself. He then fired several shots from another gun into his own body and fell unconscious over the girl's body. Miss Acuna died instantly and Verzell died on the way to a hospital.

Verzell first met Miss Acuna in a dentist's office as both were waiting an appointment. He fell in love with and annoyed her to such an extent that she sought his arrest. He was released and she sought to escape his attentions by changing her residence. Last week Verzell discovered her new boarding house and secured a room there. She reported his unwelcome attentions to the landlady who ordered him to leave when his week was up. Today's shooting followed.

CITY COUNCIL AGREES TO ASSIST IN OPENING STREET

Many Property Owners in Plea for Action; Plan Assessment District

THE new Southern Pacific station is likely to be located opposite the end of Cerritos avenue according to present indications. The City Council last night agreed that the city treasury would pay half the cost of opening Cerritos avenue provided the property owners in the vicinity would agree to pay the other half.

The meeting was attended by a large number of property owners of Southern Glendale and those interested in the location of the new depot. They emphasized the desirability of having it as close to Brand boulevard and the Pacific Electric as possible.

The City Council took the attitude that the opening of Cerritos avenue would be a distinct benefit to property owners in the vicinity and that it would be no more than right that they should pay at least half of the expense. It was estimated that this action would increase the value of property over $1000 a lot.

Offer Financial Aid

A willingness to co-operate with the city administration in securing the improvement was expressed by a number of those present. Several offered contributions of $100 to the necessary fund. Others stated that they would be glad to meet their share of the expenses.

After considerable discussion, City Engineer Ben F. Dupuy was instructed to make plans for the creation of a special assessment district. An opinion was expressed by those in the audience that this should be bounded by Central avenue on the west, Los Feliz road on the north and the city limits on the east.

The cost of the right-of-way was another point upon which there was much discussion. The City Council took the stand that the price of $20,000 mentioned in previous conferences was absolutely prohibitive. Several of those present asserted that this price might be considerably reduced.

The possibility of hindering the construction of the station because of the delay attendant upon a condemnation suit was mentioned. All present agreed that it is desirable to have the new depot built as soon as possible.

Presents Solution

A solution to the problem was offered by City Attorney Ray L. Morrow. He called attention to the fact that a constitutional

Find Grandmother Of Orphaned Child

A letter that has been received by Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson from A. M. Natwick of Minneapolis, Minn., gives the credit of the discovery of a Mrs. Hart to The Glendale Evening News for its aid in finding the person sought.

Mrs. Hart's daughter had died back east, leaving a little girl whom friends sought to turn over to its grandmother, who had promised to care for her and to provide a home for the child. Mr. Natwick had only the name of the grandmother, Mrs. Hart, to go on, and the fact that she lived somewhere in or near Glendale. Through a story published in The Evening News several weeks ago Mrs. Hart was located at Tujunga, and she has communicated with the friends of her daughter and has arranged to take charge of the child and to devote her life to bringing her up.

BURBANK

PERMITS IN MAY TOTAL $318,750

Biggest Month in History Shows Steady Growth In City Building

All building records for the history of Burbank were broken by the great total of $318,750 in building permits taken out during the month of May, 1923. This proud achievement towers like a giant over the total of $62,325 for May a year ago and greatly exceeds January, 1923, with $143,815; February, with $170,405, and March, with $176,665.

"The greatest building month in the city, heretofore, was February, 1922, when a total of $215,510 in permits was issued," states Building Inspector Elmer Dale.

Such figures, Mr. Dale believes, point to great things ahead for Burbank, particularly in view of the fact that the surprisng total of May permits includes no one outstanding structure but is, rather, a vast ensemble of moderate sized building operations.

These figures, taken in conjunction with the survey of Burbank made last fall by Manager Fred Deal of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company, must cause every resident and prospective resident of this city a deep satisfaction, Manager Deal's figures showing 2,100 families living in Burbank at that time, with a population estimated at 7,000.

How much that population has been swelled by the eight big building months that have elapsed since they were obtained may be imagined when it is revealed by figures in Building Inspector Dale's office that permits in those eight months have far exceeded $1,000,000.

Another indication of the way Burbank is growing may be had by considering the fact that the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company, as a result of last fall's survey, is establishing a new central office in this city and is placing 15,000 feet of additional cable, at a large investment of capital.

Oratorio Sunday

The quartet choir of the First Presbyterian church rendered Rossini's "Stabat Mater" Sunday night in the church auditorium, before a large audience.

This was one of a series of oratorios the choir has rendered from time to time, and is considered by all means the most difficult of any church musical program which may be prepared. It not only demands a great deal of the musicians but requires a quartet of ability and training, due to the unusual ranges, tenor running to high "D" flat and soprano making high "C" a frequent occurrence.

With the exception only of the "finale," written for a full symphony orchestra and large chorus, the oratorio was given complete, those taking part in the rendition of the work being:

Mrs. Wilbur F. Lake, soprano; J. H. Phillips, tenor; Mrs. T. A. Sinclair, contralto; Charles Rossell, basso. They were assisted by Mrs. MacKellar, mezzo; David Thomson, tenor; Mr. Russell, baritone; Mrs. Walter Fisher, pianist; Vern Isom, violinist, directed by W. F. Lake, and Mrs. Lawrence, lyric soprano.

Oriental Party

Miss Thelma Gibbs of Burbank and Miss Ruth Spafford of Glendale entertained forty-eight young folks Saturday night, at the Women's Club.

The event was in the nature of a bunko and Chinese party, oriental games being played, in addition to the ever-popular bunko.

The guests were mostly members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Presbyterian church. The guest of honor was Miss Bernice Griffith, who arrived Saturday afternoon from Emporia, Kan., and is visiting with her aunt and cousin, Mrs. E. Ervin, and her son, Dr. V. P. Ervin.

PREPARE EXHIBIT FOR EXPOSITION

Burbank to Participate in Monroe Centennial in Los Angeles

Burbank is planning to exhibit its wares at the great Monroe Doctrine Centennial Exposition to be held at Exposition park, Los Angeles, from July 2 until August 4.

A committee comprising President W. A. Thompson of the Realty Board, Secretary Colburn of the Chamber of Commerce and Postmaster Coffman are making the necessary arrangements, including acquisition of a booth of sufficient size to give this city adequate display.

The exposition will be one of the most elaborate events ever staged in the southland and offers a great opportunity to cities such as Burbank to advertise to the world—as it is estimated that upwards of 3,000,000 people from all parts of the globe will pass in and out of the gates of the Monroe Doctrine Centennial Exposition during the month of its progress.

Many of these millions of people will be prospective settlers and home-seekers, and Burbank's display will be a direct appeal to them to come and locate here, the committee feel.

The exposition is in celebration of the pronouncement of the Monroe Doctrine by President Monroe in 1823, a doctrine which has had the effect of making of these United States a great and respected nation and has had the added effect of materially altering the face of the earth.

For the purpose, Washington has allowed the organizers to purchase 300,000 Monroe Doctrine commemoratory, specially milled half-dollars, and to sell them at $1 each, to defray expenses.

Will Give Concert

On June 8 the Usona Male Quartette will be heard in this city. Although considered in the light of outside talent, each member of this quartette is a former resident of Burbank.

The members are Julius Phillips, Charles Clay, Charles Roselle and Charles Munro. They have gained considerable distinction in Southern California since their organization and will be greatly enjoyed on their visit here.

The entertainment is under the auspices of the Burbank Choral club, at the Thomas Edison school auditorium.

A dinner and dance will be held by the Business and Professional Women's club Thursday night, June 7, at the Good Fellows' club rooms.

It is understood that each member is permitted to bring a guest, preferably one who might become a member of the club.

BE PRETTY! TURN GRAY HAIR DARK

Try Grandmother's Old Favorite Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this famous old recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at a small cost.

Don't stay gray! Try it! No one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy and attractive.—Advertisement.

EAGLE ROCK

SURVEY IS MADE BY WATER FORCE

Los Angeles Department in Investigation of Eagle Rock Conditions

The Los Angeles water department has made a survey of hydraulic conditions in Eagle Rock, as they concern the fire department here, and plans are under way to install sixteen-inch mains, it is reported by President Treat of the board of public works.

This will give this community the adequate fire protection i needs, when taken in conjunction with added equipment and personnel of the Eagle Rock fire department.

Chief R. J. Scott of the Los Angeles fire department reports that there are now three men on each shift in the Eagle Rock department. Lieutenant E. W. Welyi in charge of the night shift this week, and Acting Lieutenant J. M. Gibson is in charge of the day shift. The shifts alternate weekly.

In the Eagle Rock police department, Sergeant "Jud" Cornwall is in charge of the day watch with three patrolmen under him. Acting Sergeant J. P. Connelly is in charge of the morning shift, with two patrolmen under him. And Acting Sergeant J. M. Level is in charge of the night shift with two patrolmen under him.

The fire and police departments are actively co-operating with the people of the community in "Clean-Up Week," which is now well under way. It is hoped that by Saturday there will not be in all Eagle Rock a single grass lot that remains unshorn, nor a single untidy back yard, closet or storeroom.

Mrs. Lawrence's Recital

The annual public recital, given by the pupils of Mrs. Edna Lawrence, takes place at the Women's Twentieth Century clubhouse tonight, June 5, at 7:45 o'clock. More than thirty of Mrs. Lawrence's talented pupils will take part in the carefully prepared program.

A section of gymnastics was organized, at the meeting of the Business and Professional Women's club, held last night, in the basement of the Eagle Rock public library.

The following officers will serve the Women's Twentieth Century club for the coming year: Mrs. A. G. Reily, president; Mrs. C. I. Ritchey, first vice-president; Mrs. Mary Fisk, seond vice-president; Mrs. Alice Winters, third vice-president; Mrs .H. M. Perry, recording secretary; Mrs. C. W. Hunt, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Arthur Doucette, treasurer; Mrs. C. A. Tinkhaus, auditor, and Mesdames M. L. Lee, C. W. Young and L. B. Osborn, directors.

Mrs. Koen, Mrs. Fischer and a number of other Community Players again spent Sunday at J. W. Freeman's delightful old ranch in north La Crescenta, becoming more charmed than ever with the place, whose Spanish rancho looks like adobe, but was constructed some forty years ago of local rock and boulders. Members of the party were thrilled by the view obtained from the ranch house, which is at an altitude of 2500 feet, from which a magnificent view of the broad expanses of the Pacific is had, together with the many communities lying in between.

The players have plans for the erection here, on a lot they have purchased, of a community cabin.

Local Woman Honored

Miss Ellen Galpin and her Galpin Players come in for high honors in an article appearing in a recent number of the Sunset Magazine, wherein it is pointed out at length the remarkable work being done by this talented young woman, as head of the new Los Angeles Municipal Theatre, which is one of but four such in the world.

Terminal Railway to Be Split Into Three

SACRAMENTO, June 5.—Articles of incorporation filed with Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan indicate that plans are being made to split the San Francisco-Oakland Terminal Railroad company into three separate corporations, to be known as the Key System Transit company, the East Oakland Railway company and Oakland and Hayward Railroad company.

The Key System Transit Company, which states a capital stock of $17,750,000, will take over all tracks and franchises in the east bay section, according to the articles. Each of the other roads is incorporated with a capital stock of $250,000. F. W. Frost of Oakland is the chief stockholder in each of the companies.

City Council to Aid In Cerritos Opening

amendment passed in 1918 made it possible for a municipality to take possession of a right-of-way as soon as an action in eminent domain has been filed in court merely by putting up security fixed by the court.

Following the street opening act of 1903, the City Council may introduce an ordinance of intention to open Cerritos avenue Thursday night. This can be passed after a week's interval. A month must be given for the filing of protests. These must be heard in an open meeting. The Council then has the right to order the improvement and to instruct its city attorney to start the necessary court action.

As soon as this action has been filed, Atty. Morrow does not anticipate that Glendale would have any difficulty in obtaining an immediate court order permitting the municipality to take possession of the right-of-way. He estimated that this might be secured in about two months.

Many Sign Petitions

Petitions, signed by a number of property owners and residents, requesting the opening of Cerritos avenue, were received last night by the Council. The signers stated that they wished "to dispel the idea seemingly prevalent that we are opposed to having the new Southern Pacific depot located at the foot of Cerritos. We hereby desire to state that we are highly in favor of having it located at Cerritos and having Cerritos opened through and we believe it would be for the best interest of the city of Glendale as a whole to have it located nearer the street car line."

The petitions were signed by the following: Mrs. C. F. Tomkins, A. W. Anderson, Mrs. Ellen Swaner, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Woodbury, Mrs. L. Baker, Mrs. Barbara Beth, Mrs. H. G. Salzman, Mrs. F. W. S. PLANS NEW FIGHT ON DRUGS

kes Action as Result of Indifference of Allies at Geneva Meet

By GEORGE E. DURNO
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Con-ced by the stunning rebuff sus-ned Thursday at Geneva that United States is standing vir-lly alone in its fight to curb international dope traffic, the vernment here took under ad-ement new methods for stamp-out the indiscriminate dis-bution of narcotics.

Two ways present themselves get around the indifference of allies on this subject, namely: An all-American embargo on importation of narcotics ex-t for medical and scientific ge, under strictest supervision d;

Incorporation in the new com-rcial treaties being negotiated the United States with the jority of the world powers of strictive measures.

Claim Astonishment

Officials here were astonished word from Geneva where the ague of Nations advisory com-ttee on regulation and control narcotics is sitting to the effect at the American resolution call-for immediate curtailment of owth and production was side-acked in favor of the "toothless" oposal sponsored by Great Brit-n.

The resolution adopted merely ovided for the appointment of ll another commission composed countries drawing revenue om opium monopolies to con-er the question at some future d indefinite date.

While progress in the world ht is thus halted, it is felt that nsiderable advancement might made in ridding the United ates at least of the drug menace a Pan-American agreement.

Lever For U. S.

The resolution adopted at the cent assembly of the Pan-Ameri-n congress at Santiago, Chile, in-rsing The Hague opium con-ntion and urging all countries t subscribing to take immedi-e steps to do so, would, officials re believe, afford the United ates a lever in gaining the con-nt to such a proposal by the uth and Central American gov-nments. Canada, with a drug oblem similar to this country, uld be counted on to support the ea, while Mexico and countries eking favor in Washington's eye, uld likewise support it.

The alternative of circumventng e allied apathy through the edium of the new commercial eaties likewise should prove ef-ctive to a marked degree, it is lt.

lbert E. Cawood to Handle Merchants' Accounts in Local Field

"Keeping pace with Glendale's rowth," is the slogan adopted by lbert E. Cawood in opening an dvertising agency in the Mon-rch building, corner Brand boule-ard and Harvard street.

In addition to the various hases of commercial advertising hich the Cawood agency will andle for merchants, a distribut-g system will be established for lacing circulars in the homes. r. Cawood for three years has ad charge of similar work at the lendale Theatre, including the ublishing and preparation of ad-ertising copy as well.

"For bigger and better busi-ess," Mr. Cawood is a firm be-iever in advertising in all its orms. He knows the power of ewspaper display, the attractive-ess of signs, the direct appeal of irculars and the care needed in arrying out these commissions.

Wide Experience

Technical training possessed by r. Cawood gives him the abil-y of an artist, yet he combines is with practical personal ex-erience in advertising and print-ng work which makes for econ-my, according to those who are cquainted with his experience.

For Glendale an exclusive ad-ertising agency is an innovation, ut the population and commer-ial life of the city merit a gen-rous support of just such a busi-ess as Mr. Cawood proposes to onduct. He is organizing the ork this week and already has he prospect of sufficient accounts o make his business profitable as ell as practical.

GOES TO HOSPITAL

A minor operation was per-ormed upon Miss Irene Schindel f 1375 North Columbus avenue his morning at the Glendale Re-earch Hospital.

Beauty And Brilliancy Radiate At H. S. Webb Co. Store Opening Last Night

WITHIN the doors of the new store home of the H. S. Webb Company at 139 North Brand boulevard, Glendalians last night found beauty and brilliancy radiating on every side. The new store is the crowning event of the business career of H. S. Webb, pioneer Glendale merchant, and sharing with him last night in the fulfillment of his dream of years were 5000 or more patrons and friends from all parts of southern California.

Undoubtedly there has been no business building erected in Glendale that has been watched with keener interest than the Emery-Webb building. Business men have noted its construction on their way to and from their offices, and shoppers have anticipated its completion and opening.

And so the opening of the new store becomes a part of the city's history and the H. S. Webb store becomes an established trading center.

Complete in Detail

Building, finishing, furnishing, stock and stock arrangement happily combine the artistic and practical. Such was the unanimous compliment of those received at the store last night to Alfred F. Priest, architect; E. U. Emery and H. S. Webb, owners of the building, and to Mr. Webb and those associated with him in business.

Greeting the guests were two beautiful window settings, the expansive window space lending itself wonderfully to the display of rich fabrics and gowns. The windows and interior arrangements were planned by D. L. Ludwig.

Just within the entrance one was confronted by a veritable flower garden. On all sides were beautiful floral pieces, fashioned from southern California's choicest blooms, sent by friends and firms in Glendale, Los Angeles and other California cities and other states, congratulating Mr. Webb and wishing him continued success in his business activity.

Receive Visitors

In the receiving line were Mr. Webb and his mother, Mrs. Frankie Webb; Mr. and Mrs. E. U. Emery and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred F. Priest.

In the various parts of the store the guests were greeted and shown about by the heads of departments and their assistants.

A noticeable feature was the interest of the guests in the stock. Many were insistent on purchasing and when they found it was not possible they had hats, coats, gowns and other things laid away for them until today.

Upon arrival each guest was presented with a carnation as a favor of the evening.

Musical Numbers

Music during the evening was furnished by Kelley's Shrine club orchestra. Adeline Woodbury, child artist and saxophone player, delighted the company, and D. Ripley Jackson and Mrs. Mina Wenzel extended the courtesy to the Webb company of appearing and giving a group of most enjoyable vocal solos and duets.

Messages and floral gifts represented all parts of California and other states. They were from William Howe, Glendale State bank, Clabart Brothers, Crocher & Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. E. U. Emery, Glendale Credit association, J. A. Newton Electric company, Glendale Florist, Mr. and Mrs. John G. Huntley, C. & S. Cafeteria, Owen Emery, Virginia Emery, Ed Nisle.

Numerous Glendale people have cabins in the vicinity and plan to occupy them soon, according to bits of gossip gathered by Bess Munn, editor of Bear Life.

WINS PRAISE OF LASKY OFFICIAL

Performance by Pupils of Keller Dancing School Called Excellent

The Children's Society Vaudeville, presented recently by Mrs. Pearl Keller Brattain, at the Philharmonic auditorium, Los Angeles, in which more than 200 of her dancing pupils participated, has brought to this very popular and successful teacher a large number of commendatory letters, among them the following, from Charles A. Taylor, one of the officials of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation:

"I had the pleasure of attending the performance of Society Vaudevlile, given by your pupils, under your personal direction, at the Philharmonic auditorium, Los Angeles, May 19, 1923, and it strikes me favorably that Glendale has something to be very proud of, in Pearl Keller and her School of Dancing and Dramatic Art.

"It is my sincere belief that the school should become a national institution, under your able direction, for the development of talent in the young of both sexes. The performance was excellent throughout. Many of the numbers would score a decided hit on any professional bill in our best theatres of New York.

May Enter Movies

"It is my intention to bring a number of your advanced pupils to the attention of Mr. Lasky and his leading directors. You should personally direct and stage some of the dancing numbers of our big super-features—like those introduced in the Egyptian sequence of Gloria Swanson's latest picture, also in "Children of Jazz."

"If you could find some time to do what Theodore Kosloff and others, who supply these numbers, are doing, I am sure it would add to your achievement in bringing out all the art and graces in your advanced classes, and give them the prominence and publicity they rightly deserve.

"There is a rumor about the studio that Marion Davies has placed herself under your direction at your school. This is truly good news. In the meantime, I am keeping a watchful eye on seven or eight of your youthful stars, who are bound to read their names in electric lights before many moons.

"With sincere best wishes to you and yours.

"CHARLES A. TAYLOR."

Picture Stars Study

Mrs. Pearl Keller Brattain states that Marion Davies has not yet signed up, but that Mrs. Harold Lloyd (Mildred Davis) is one of her pupils, as well as Esther Ralston, an old pupil, who now has a long-term contract with Universal, and is playing leads with Herbert Rawlinson.

In addition, Bobby Lehman, the "Vest Pocket Julian Eltinge," is back taking an advanced course before going over the Orpheum circuit, back East.

And Mrs. Brattain learns, through a mutual friend, that Mrs. Pickford is planning to place with her for instruction little Mary Pickford, Lottie Pickford's daughter and the famous Mary's niece.

TUJUNGA

SIXTEEN PUPILS FINISH STUDIES

Grammar School Students in Graduation Exercises Given Diplomas

Sixteen pupils, the entire class of eight boys and eight girls, graduated Friday from the Tujunga Grammar school and are now the proud possessors of the diplomas they earned by close application to their studies.

Graduation exercises were held at Bolton hall, which was decorated in the school colors, blue and gray, a very artistic effect, due to the work of the class mothers, Mrs. Bodkin and Mrs. Anderson.

Dorothy Armstrong read the class will and Guy Fasoli made the class prophecy.

Peggy Thompson was valedictorian, having received the highest grades of her class.

The graduates sang their class song, "Silver, Gray and Blue," and Beverly Harrison played a piano selection.

Frederick W. Plaisted, formerly governor of Maine and now a resident of Tujunga, made the commencement address.

Ambition Is Shown

Fred W. Axe, principal of the school, presented the class, and addressed the parents and friends briefly. He stated that the class had not only worked hard, some doing from 1½ to 3½ years' work this term, but they had acquired what he believed to be still more important, the spark of ambition and the fighting spirit that carries on over seemingly insurmountable obstacles.

Wallace M. Morgan, president of the school board, addressed the class and gave them a bit of advice that was both brief and to the point—to be "good sports" and to play the game as such as the years roll in with new and unexpected problems are to be worked out. Mr. Morgan then presented the diplomas and each graduate received a beautiful bouquet, carried out in the school colors of blue and gray.

Ruby Hightower made the acceptance speech on behalf of the class and everyone joined in singing "America."

After the exercises the pupils and parents were the guests at a reception given by the class mothers, Mrs. Bodkin and Mrs. Anderson, in honor of the graduating class. Refreshments were served, including a huge cake that was a work of art in itself, baked for the occasion by Louis Mucha. The cake was also carried out in the school colors, with gray frosting and blue flowers.

Class Prophecy

Guy Fasoli read the following class prophecy: On a beautiful June night in the year of 1933 a get together gab fest took place in the auditorium of the Tujunga High school. Fred Axe, who had been principal of the grammar school in the good old days, had kept in touch with a number of his old pupils of '23 and had sent out a call, to all those who were not too far away, to come home for just a day.

Tujunga, which had been a little community of 3000 souls in '23, had become in ten years the largest mountain city in California. The schools had kept pace with the increase in population and magnificent stucco grade and high school buildings covered more than two acres of ground on which the old frame building used to stand.

A few of the graduates of 1923 had made their homes and settled down in Tujunga and they co-operated with Mr. Axe in his plans for a get-together party. The night of the meeting found every member of the old class at the banquet table in the auditorium.

What had the years made of the girls and boys? Each in his school days had been known for some peculiar trait, some individual character. Fred Axe, as spokesman, looked about at the faces and sighed.

Where were the impish grins, the slender bodies and the piping voices of yesterday? Replaced in every instance by maturity.

"Bill Sessions," he called to a man at the far end of the table, "you used to be the wit of the class. I suppose you are a famous clown in the Ringling circus now? Come and tell em what the years have done to you."

Bill shook his head and laughed. "There is a firm of undertakers in San Francisco named Jones & Sessions and I am the junior member." "Great Scot!" mumbled Mr. Axe.

Dorothy Armstrong was next called upon. "I suppose," said Ruby Hightower, "that she is a bookkeeper."

"You guessed it," replied Dorothy. "I am head bookkeeper for the Tujunga Home Extension Company, which has just opened a new tract on Mt. Sister Elsie, a restricted district built up of millionaires' homes. Now what are you, Ruby?"

"I am a missionary," answered Ruby. Next came Ralph Whitsell. "I suppose," said Mr. Axe, "that the most of you know about his wonderful additions to Tujunga, but let him tell it himself."

Ralph answered that he was the head of the Tujunga Railway Company.

James Wright, who, in the old days had tortured the ears of the class with his trap drumming, was the cashier in a bank, but admitted that he sometimes went to the attic where he practiced the old-fashioned jazz beats and the long mellow rolls on the old snare drum.

Peggy Thompson, one of the most studious of the class of '23, was a teacher in the Tujunga high school and had just finished writing a book on "Giggles and the Cure."

Bob Mills was the head salesman for a pickle concern. He admitted that he still liked to tease the girls.

Harriet Farr, who had possessed a burning desire to teach piano lessons, had instead become a welfare worker and a power in society. She had hopes of seeing her musical ambitions realized in her little daughter.

Frank Silver, the Bill Hart of the old days, had changed greatly and was posing for the Ladies' Home Journal, advertising dancing pumps.

Guy Fasoli, noted in school days for his "goo-goo" eyes, was a staid bachelor, wearing glasses.

Stuart Correll was still the dainty chap of old. "You always reminded me of a watch charm," laughed Marshall Anderson, who had become the leading theatre magnate of Los Angeles.

"That's just what I am," answered Correll. "I put my name and whole personality into every time piece that is turned out of the Correll watch factory."

Fashion Designer

Loreta Bodkin was a designer of fashions. Evelyn Larson was the head of a modern hiking and scout club for our of doors girls.

Delthea Hallet was a buyer for one of the largest department stores in Los Angeles, spending part of her time in Europe.

Beverly Harrison was conducting a modern school of dancing for girls and she invited her friends and classmates who had small fairies in their homes to place them in her charge and she would teach them to step high, wide and handsome for a small fee, results guaranteed.

"And now, Mr. Axe, what have the years done to you?" asked Bob Mills. "I understand that you have stuck right with Tujunga and that you are the proud father of two or three little hatchets."

Mr. Axe waited for the laughter to subside and then said, "I am writing a series of books on modern education and on the trials and tribulations of teachers who have to stand for a bunch of rowdy youngsters—well, come on kids, let's hunt up a dance floor and see if we can trip the light fantastic as we did in 1923."

MONTROSE

C. OF C. TO HOLD DANCE JUNE 6TH

Bank's Growth Is Shown by $235,000 Deposits in Eighteen Months

A dance and entertainment will be given by the Montrose Chamber of Commerce next Wednesday, June 6, in the new Reinhart brick block at the corner of Montrose and Honolulu avenues.

The music will be furnished by an orchestra from Glendale and a committee of Montrose women, of which Mrs. Ellis is chairman, will serve refreshments. Admission will be 50c.

After only five months' operation, the Montrose State bank shows deposits of approximately $235,000. Eighteen months ago the corner occupied by this institution was covered with sage brush. Today it is a thriving business center.

The bank recently purchased the entire issue of school bonds voted by the district, amounting to $45,000, and on June 1 the money was on deposit. This quick action by the bank will eliminate almost entirely the delays usually experienced in getting building operations started.

The schoolhouse will be built on the property consisting of an entire block between Mira Vista and Florencita avenues, and will be one of the most modern and up-to-date plants in the country.

Will Bring Judge to Glendale Cat Show

Plans to bring an eastern judge to Glendale for the annual cat show in December were made last night at the club meeting with Mrs. F. S. Card at her home at 370 West Patterson street.

To raise a fund for this purpose a series of card parties are to be given, the first affair to take place Thursday, June 14, at the home of Mrs. William Hopkins at 653 North Central avenue. Assisting hostesses will be Mesdames B. O. Holbrook and F. S. Card. Five Hundred will be played.

Upon the resignation of Mrs. Ross as corresponding secretary Mrs. Card was named to succeed her.

Later in the evening a social hour and lunch was enjoyed.

The next club meeting is to be held July 9 with Miss Louella Grim at 650 Grand View avenue. At that time a dinner will be served.

HOLDS OPEN HOUSE

University Southern California is holding open house today for seniors from various high schools in Southern California. About twenty are expected to attend this afternoon from Glendale.

UNDERGOES OPERATION

A minor operation was performed upon Robert Lindsey of 1105 South Adams street this morning at the Glendale Research Hospital.

ELKS TO STAGE BOXING PROGRAM

Some Real Bouts Will Be Provided Fans Here on Thursday Night

Elks from all over the San Fernando valley will rally at the Glendale Lodge and Clubhouse, 120 East Colorado street, Thursday night, June 7, at 8 o'clock, to witness a series of fast boxing bouts.

The bouts are being supplied by Wad Wadhams of Los Angeles, known all up and down the coast as a promoter of clean, clever fights. The night of bouts held at the local lodge this past winter, which drew such a large and enthusiastic audience, was also arranged by Mr. Wadkins, which will be sufficient endorsement for all lovers of the sport, members feel.

"The bouts will take place in the lodge room," states Willis M. Kimball, secretary of the club. "This room will accommodate over 600 people, so no Elk who likes a good series of boxing matches need stay away for fear of there not being room enough."

The affair is announced as being for Elks only. It has been arranged by Ray L. Galvin and Harry E. McCartney, both members of the local lodge.

Shrine Parades Amid Record Breaking Heat

court of honor in the Garden of Allah. No unique or praiseworthy feature passed that did not draw its merited applause, while the continuous "eyes left" in honor of the chief executive was returned, salute for salute.

Jammed by Crowds

Long before the parade got under way, the avenue was absolutely jammed with spectators. Seeking points of vantage along the curbs, thousands of men, women and children left their beds at a painfully early hour to find choice seats and hold them against all comers.

Conservative estimates placed Washington's guests at 290,000 up to this morning with a continuous stream still flowing in, and of this number, added to the city's population of 475,000, fully half were on the avenue.

Street fakirs and ballyhoo men enlivened the early morning hours crying their wares and enlivening the pleasure-seeking throng into their shows strewn along the "market of Bagdad" and the Midway. A veritable blanket of empty bags, peanut shells and fruit peelings testified to many impromptu breakfasts eaten on the curbstones.

Summer Scout Camp Plans Are Discussed

A special meeting of the Scoutmasters of the Verdugo Hills District Council was held last night in the district Scout office for the purpose of discussing plans for the 923 Boy Scout summer camp. Frank C. Ayars, chairman of the camping committee, reviewed with the Scoutmasters the possibilities of a co-operative troop camp. It was agreed that a complete announcement of all summer camp plans should be made through the press before the end of this week.

Scout Executive Harold Benner, accompanied by Eagle and Jamboree Scout Walter Wescott, and M. E. Hill, Scoutmaster Troop No. 1, Tujunga, left early this morning for Lake Arrowhead, where they expect to complete all details relative to the establishment of the summer camp.

A Mistake About Small Deposits

MANY people feel that a bank is not interested in small deposits. This is a mistaken opinion. The primary duty of a bank is service—service that is not measured by the customer's balance. Its business is to protect small depositors as well as those with large accounts.

A bank's power to serve its community grows not alone from large individual accounts but from the accumulated funds of many.

Through small savings deposits, the saver may have whatever he wants that money can buy—the realization of his ambitions, independence, contentment, success. Through the amassed savings of the nation, its vital industries are able to exist and progress.

This bank invites small accounts.

SEIZE BRITISH SHIPS

LONDON, June 5.—Russian warships are reported to have seized four British fishing trawlers in the White sea, according to a news agency report received from Christiania today. Negotiations are now proceeding between Moscow and London regarding previous seizures of fishing boats. The crews were arrested, but subsequently sent home.

ARREST PROFESSORS

TOKIO, June 5.—Alleging a plot to spead Bolshevist ideas in the Japanese army and among the student body, the police this afternoon arrested two Wasedo university professors and thirty socialists. It was announced that additional arrests would be made because of evidence gained of a plot having as its ultimate object the assassination of cabinet officials.

LIMITATION ON OPIUM

GENEVA, June 5.—The League of Nations opium commission today unanimously adopted the American resolution limiting opium production to medicinal needs. The interpretation of "medical needs" has caused much dissension in the international conference on drug traffic.

THEATRES

THE GLENDALE

"The Last Moment," showing today for the last time, at the Glendale Theatre, tends to carry out the thought once expressed by Napoleon, that a soldier in fear of his life, who pressed steadily forward despite his trepidation, was a braver man, and infinitely more heroic, than the fellow who never knew fear.

Henry Hull, in the role of the bookish and supposedly spineless young man, suddenly confronted with the impelling need for courage, who rises to the situation in splendid fashion, facing—nay, going out to meet—death, with supreme bravery, is as fine a screen portrayal as has been seen in many a day.

Doris Kenyon, who plays the role of his sweetheart, gives a delicate and beautiful characterization and rounds out a fine picture.

Kellogg's Bran is Guaranteed to give relief BECAUSE IT IS ALL BRAN!

Relief from constipation, whether it be mild or chronic, will follow the regular, every-day eating of Kellogg's Bran. We have thousands of letters from former sufferers who tell us that the natural "bulk-action" of this wonderful cereal product has given relief they have not known for years. We guarantee that Kellogg's Bran will free the system from constipation because it is ALL BRAN—not a composition in which bran is added. If constipation is to be permanently relieved, you must eat ALL BRAN—that's why your physician will recommend Kellogg's for constipation.

Constipation creates toxic conditions which poison the blood and every organ of the body. It slows you down mentally and physically, and creates sick headaches, nausea, bad breath, pimples—finally, in many cases, leading to Bright's disease, diabetes and other dreaded illnesses. You must fight constipation with Kellogg's Bran regularly if you want health!

You'll say Kellogg's Bran is really delicious—it has a nut-like flavor that appeals to the most fastidious appetite. Eat it as a cereal, sprinkled on hot or cold cereals or cooked with hot cereals, allowing two tablespoonfuls of bran for each person. Be certain to eat at least two tablespoonfuls each day; as much with each meal in chronic cases. Kellogg's is delicious made into muffins, macaroons, raisin bread, griddle cakes. Recipes in every package. Kellogg's Bran is served by leading hotels, clubs and restaurants in individual packages. It is sold by all grocers.

AIM TO CLARIFY RAILWAY TANGLE

Question of Consolidation Up to Federal Court For Solution

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
For International News Service

WASHINGTON, June 5.—The question of whether two great competing railroads are to be allowed to consolidate will have to be referred back to congress again for decision, according to the views expressed here by legal authorities.

The Sherman anti-trust laws say they shall not merge, as to do so tends towards monopoly.

The transportation act of 1920, the storm center of a controversy, says they may do so with the permission of the interstate commerce commission, and in some instances they already have done so.

Asks Test Case

Perplexed as to the intent of congress in passing these two seemingly contradictory pieces of legislation, the government is at a loss as to procedure. In its dilemma, the department of justice has appealed to the circuit court of appeals in St. Paul to make a test case out of the Southern-Pacific Central Pacific case, and has suggested to the circuit court that it obtain from the supreme court of the United States, if necessary, a clarification.

The supreme court already is on record as upholding both the Sherman law and the transportation act in many cities, but never has ruled specifically on the apparent conflict between the two statutes.

Holding Southern Pacific control of Central Pacific was in violation of the Sherman law, the supreme court ordered the Southern Pacific to "divest itself" of control of the Central Pacific.

To Clean Up 'Mess'

When the transportation act was passed, the Southern Pacific applied to the interstate commerce commission for permission to acquire the control of the Central Pacific.

The action begun in St. Paul by the government is designed to get a clarification of the "mess."

Regardless, however, of what the decisions of the courts may be in the matter, it is certain that congress will have to act in the matter again, else endless litigation will confront railroads and the government, it was said here.

WALKER JEWELRY CO. HAS AUCTION

Clearing Up Surplus Stock At Bargain Prices at East Broadway Store

"What am I bid? Five dollars. Raise it to ten. Raise it to ten. It's worth twenty! What do I hear?"

And five minutes later the song is sung:

"Twelve fifty, cheap at the price, make it fifteen. Going once. Twenty dollars' worth of merchandise, folks. Going twice. It's a bargain. Gone."

That is only a hint as to what an auction amounts to. Anyone who has lived in the middle west knows what wonderful "buys" may be made at an auction. They are the quickest means of raising money at low cost known back there in prairie states.

The Walker Jewelry Company of 116 East Broadway, which was established in 1911 and is known for its standard merchandise, is holding an auction sale every afternoon at 2:30 and each evening at 7:30 o'clock at which some wonderful bargains for the June bride, as well as practical jewelry purchases, may be had at prices seldom found in clearance sales.

L. Dascomb, the auctioneer, is here to assist Mr. Walker in clearing his stock for another season. Nothing is reserved, it is stated, and goods will be reserved on request.

Dr. H. G. Westphal of Sanitarium on Tour

Dr. Westphal is going for graduate study in Toronto, Canada; New York, Boston and Philadelphia. Included in the general study will be a special investigation of insolin, the new treatment for diabetes.

During Dr. Westphal's absence Dr. W. J. Johnson will be in charge of the Sanitarium and Hospital.

Editor Is Recovering From Nervous Attack

C. W. Pierce, originally from Davenport, Iowa, but now a newspaper man connected with the Morning Progress at Santa Monica, is at the Glendale Sanitarium and Hospital suffering from a nervous breakdown. Mr. Pierce in addition to his newspaper work conducts a large real estate business and refuses to rest except when forced to come to Glendale. He had six months' vacation here two years ago.

The Morning Progress is making rapid headway in the rich Santa Monica Bay district, he reports.

War On Rum Is Costly
Machine Gets Best Of 'Em
Harding Boosts Roads
Talks For Better Homes

By Gil A. Cowan

TWENTY-FIVE million dollars are to be asked of Congress for the purpose of assisting in the national prohibition campaign next year.

Only $9,000,000 were appropriated for the present fiscal year, and this sum is considered utterly inadequate to cope with the illicit rum trade.

It begins to look as though the United States was pouring money down a sewer in its effort to stamp out booze, rather than pouring the confiscated contraband into the aforesaid sewer.

Yet twenty-five millions of dollars isn't such a large amount when we consider the cost of the World war. And, as far as results go, the fight for a dry nation is much more satisfactory than our battles for a peaceable world. Both crusades seem futile. But are they?

Somewhere is written the words, "Little drops of water, little grains of sand, make the mighty ocean," etc. Maybe millions upon millions of dollars will make a mighty desert. And, with an increased force of prohibition agents with lots of sand, the bootleggers may be run to their lair for the last time.

There is something about the booze business which is comparable to a snake-infested country. You do not see the snakes disappear, but they do; and the reptile found occasionally makes for watchfulness.

Most bootleggers are getting out of the business as soon as they can find something more respectable. They are the last of the bar boys and "hangers on" of the old saloon. Indeed, they are quite sketchy people to talk about.

From personal observation, the rum runner is a clever salesman—an ingenious cuss—who is willing to do anything to accommodate you. He is not the black-moustached, burly character you would imagine. But he, in his business, slicing his profits with minions of the law, is just as unconcerned as to his fate as the officer who uses every device to trap him.

Friend William Richardson, governor of California, is subject for attack in certain newspapers in this state, it being claimed that his signature of the Bromley bill is a return to the "spoils" system. A referendum will be sought for the measure, it is claimed.

As an observer at the legislature, and with a knowledge of political conditions such as the layman does not have, the writer can state frankly that the Bromley bill is necessary if we are to have a government as desired by the people, and not dictated by the politicians.

Under conditions existing after the election of Hiram Johnson as governor, our progressive legislation made it possible for a machine to become mightier than a man. It is a known fact that Al McCabe and Martin Madsen were the "bosses," and not Johnson or Stephens in the closing days of their regimes.

We honestly believe Johnson sought to get out from under the grip of certain influences by graduating to the senate. We know that good old Bill Stephens was the victim of the machine and not himself.

And it took Friend Richardson, lone-handed, to smash that insidious machine, which was directing the affairs of government, and still would direct them if the people permit the Bromley bill to be buried. Forget the "bunk," folks, about Richardson being a reactionary. He is one of the original progressives.

Briefly, the Bromley bill permits the governor to oust any commissioner or department head, except those elected or provided for by constitution. He cannot touch the school department, railroad commission, or a dozen other divisions of state government; but this new law would give him sufficient power to mold an administration suitable to the mandate of the people, to wit: economy with efficiency. We want it, and we are going to get it.

Also, it would give his successor power to do likewise. It prevents saddling of a lot of last-minute appointments, such as Stephens made, on each incoming governor, and the thinking legislators knew this when they passed the Bromley bill.

It is a known fact that a majority in both the assembly and senate, but especially in the latter, opposed the governor's program. Yet they believed, and still believe, it fair play to give him a chance to make good.

Senator Herbert C. Jones of San Jose denies him that opportunity if he seeks the defeat of the Bromley bill by referendum.

President Harding now talks about better homes and more highways. Likely he has found the world court too big a subject to chew upon. The United States could afford to hire an international expert to deal in picture book ideals and altruistic atmosphere in order that our president take up some of the problems which confront us here at home.

Better homes on the farms, for instance, are the secret to agricultural prosperity. Our cities have made conditions so attractive that the farm boy and country girl cannot be blamed for going to something better.

And more highways, paved roads if you please, will make a better nation in every respect. Down in the muddied-up sections of Missouri the preacher and teacher and doctor and judge have a hard time getting about. So Missouri is building better roads. The Carolinas and other sleepy states increased 1000 per cent in mental efficiency with the coming of the automobiles and constructed necessary highways, which opened paths in the wilderness that previously only an ox team could travel half of the year.

You would not believe that oxen still are hauling things in Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas—not to forget several more states—but they are doing just that thing, while our truck factories in California are not running at production peak.

Those folks must have highways. The United States will have to see they get them. For there are none so blind as those who will not see. And none so satisfied as those who have absolutely nothing with which to worry.

President Harding speaks wisely when he tells us what is needed here at home. For we sometimes let our minds wander, like Mr. Wilson's did, into somebody else's back yard, which may be cluttered up. And then we can't see what a beautiful opportunity we have for cultivating that which is in our own domain.

RUCKSTELL AXLE FOR FORD SHOWN

Open Mechanism Gives Full View of Workings of Car's Power Plant

A Ford chassis, painted in white and cut open at every vital point to show the inner workings of the entire power plant of the Ford car, is on display at the Jesse E. Smith showrooms at 125 West Colorado, and is attracting much attention from Ford owners and others.

The principal object of the display is to demonsfrate the advantages that are added to the Ford by the installation of the Ruckstell two-speed axle and the four forward speeds which, it is claimed, mark one of the greatest advances in the construction of Ford cars since they were first placed on the market.

The Ruckstell axle, which is the outcome of many years of costly experiments, affords four changes of gear in place of two, as is now the case in Fords that are not equipped with this invention, without in any way interfering with the mechanical simplicity that has made the Ford the universal car. The additional speeds thus afforded increase the flexibility of the car under all conditions, and, at the same time, add strength to the car.

Three Speeds Added

Through the installation of the Ruckstell two-speed axle, three extra speeds are added to the Ford, two forward and one reverse, giving a total of six changes of speed, while the gearing of the axle, which is the planetary reduction type, is said to increase the power of the higher corresponding Ford speed by fifty-five per cent.

Another advantage that is claimed for the Ruckstell axle is that it affords added braking power when coming down hills, thus giving additional assurance of safety in mountain touring.

The officials of the Jesse E. Smith organization are enthusiastic over the display and are inviting all motorists to call and inspect the working of the Ford engine and the Ruckstell axle.

Oklahoma College Head Facing War of Faculty

STILLWATER, Okla. June 5.—The resignation of Professor J. A. Tolman marked the first day of the regime of George Wilson, formerly a non-partisan league organizer, as president of the Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college here.

In a letter to former President Eskridge, Professor Tolman said he refused to teach under Wilson. The remainder of the faculty and the students were silent.

The new president assumed office with the protection of the adjutant-general of the Oklahoma National Guard and four other guard officers.

The appointment of Wilson recently by the board of agriculture raised a storm of protest. The American Legion opposed the appointment vigorously because Wilson was said to have remarked that he wished he might "shoot a hole through every American Legion button he saw."

NEED OF SCHOOLS TOLD BY ARTIST

Individualism of American Painters Reason for Lack, Is Claim

The answer to the question "Why have we no great art schools in America today?" was given Sunday afternoon at the Public Library by Mrs. Kathryn Leighton prominent artist, before an appreciative audience.

The affair was under the auspices of the Glendale Art Association and was one of a series of bi-monthly public lectures being held at the library by this organization.

The reason for a lack of outstanding art schools in this country was given by Mrs. Leighton as an outgrowth of the typically American individualistic attitude toward things artistic, our artists preferring the working out of their own expressions of things to the laborious and uninventive European custom of copying masters and teachers by way of serving an apprenticeship.

This, Mrs. Leighton said, was why it is so difficult in America to secure co-operation among artists along any line—each preferring to work out his or her own destiny unhampered.

Sympathy Needed

Mrs. Leighton indicated that such an attitude might well be carried too far and urged artists to realize that to become well known they must mingle with and understand the people and get the people to understand them and what they are driving at, artistically. In short, it was brought out clearly by the speaker that human sympathy is much needed both ways between artist and public.

Mrs. Leighton is leaving the middle of June for a three months' trip into the High Sierras to study and paint nature.

Mrs. Roy A. Ballagh president of the Glendale Art Association, carried out Mrs. Leighton's plea by announcing that the association is for the public as well as the artists and for the children as well as the adults in either group.

"The chief present aim of the Glendale Art Association is to establish an art museum in this city in connection with the Public Library where permanent as well as temporary and private exhibits may be held," Mrs. Ballagh states.

Build Reputation

"Art is growing rapidly in this city, which will in the not far-distant future enjoy as a reputation among artists and art-lovers not second to Carmel-by-the-Sea.

"The Tuesday Afternoon club is seriously contemplating the addition of a fine arts section to their program for the coming year. What would be finer than to announce the addition of such a section with an exhibition in the beautiful rooms of the clubhouse of the paintings of some famous Californian artist or group of artists?"

The next meeting of the Glendale Art Associaton will be a social gathering at the Public Library Sunday afternoon, June 17, it is announced. The general public is welcome.

Queen of Mannequins And American Marry

Kingsland had known the beauty for several years, but the marriagge came as a distinct surprise to the American colony in Paris.

LAST PARTY FOR JUNIOR DANCERS

Brilliant Scene Staged at Tuesday Club House on Saturday Night

Thirty-three couples lined up for the grand march Saturday night when the Junior Dance Assembly and Junior Cotillion met at the Tuesday Afternoon Clubhouse for the last and most brilliant of the popular social affairs that have been enjoyed by the younger set this season. The banquet room was cleared for dancing, and the Palm room and halls were utilized as well. The rooms formed a beautiful setting for the happy throng of young people, and the evening was made more delightful by the presence of a large number of interested parents.

Miss Lucile Beach and Richardson D. Jones, Miss Marjorie Hart and Alex McPherson led the grand march. A favor dance was the crowning event of the evening and following this joy reigned supreme, with the favors, which were beautifully decorated horns, adding to the jollity of the evening. The mothers of the boys of both assemblies presided at the punch bowl. Music was furnished by Arthur Cressey's four piece orchestra.

Members Present

Members of the Junior Assembly present were Misses Marjorie Hart, Marjorie Temple, Lucile Beach, Beryl Goodale, Carolyn Ayars, Vivian Nay, Alice Hill, Elizabeth Walker, Thelma Barker, Frederica Browne, Jane Richardson, Lucile Harris, Bonnie Jean Lockwood, Ruth Clauson, Alice Dewey, Mary Jo Phillips, Sarah Chandler, Katherine Bender; Jack Alvord, Alex McPherson, Richardson D. Pitch Horseshoes Or Play Croquet And World Classes You As Rich And Retired

By GIL A. COWAN

EVER play croquet, or pitch horseshoes? Well, we have, and it's good exercise. But we don't expect to take the time off to engage in these pastimes until we retire. For those are the bestest games going for a fellow who has tired, or retired, or just sat down to see the world whisk by in its high powered automobiles. And we use the word "bestest" advisedly upon occasion.

Take a walk with me around the block on West Broadway, near Central avenue, where palm leaves are thatched together for sunshades for the Glendale Horseshoe club and where three croquet grounds are laid out, also a half dozen set ups for the shoe tossers.

Any afternoon, if it isn't raining, and it seldom does that in Southern California, you will find a gang there engrossed in checkers or swapping yarns or ringing up ringers on the score sheets or croqueting their way to the final stake and another victory.

From Many States

Men from almost every state in the union, fully fifty per cent of them tired farmers, who have come here to rest; others representing the professions in the heyday of their youth; not a few bankers; some former merchants, which covers a world of endeavor; and there is an occasional printer, real estate man, miller and manufacturer in the crowd.

The Glendale Horseshoe Club has dues the poorest person could well afford to pay for amusement, yet were you to discover the total wealth gathered round the rough wooden benches where the old boys sit and smoke and bask in the sunshine—well, it would give the banks a good little start on a six story building.

Indeed, these retired farmers and captains of finance and other gentlemen of leisure have gained the recognition of the Security Trust & Savings Bank in Glendal which provides them with score cards in prospect of business to be accrued. We'll bet it pays 'em big, too, for we would like to borrow about half of what some of the champion hurlers possess.

Wealth No Object

Just to get a glimpse of some of their past performances you ask a few questions and find out this 76 year old youngster on the bleachers we interview has had seventy-five years of active life, mostly in the mercantile business, but of later years banking in a big eastern city. You might appraise him for a lot less if you did not know that the horseshoe grounds is the only place in town where they don't care to know how much you are worth, but how well you can play the game.

As we were saying, this elderly gentleman who sold out the bank last year had never been sick until he quit working every day. Goshamighty, for three months he was flat on his back from freedom. And so he came to California where his daily duty consists of walking down to the horseshoe grounds each day and see if everybody is on the job there.

"Never retire, my son," he said. "Die with your boots on. If I knew a year ago what I know now, you would find me back in the swivel chair directing business for all but three months out of each year."

Going On and On

The day was gloomy and one would hate to think of having to "sail on, sail on," as the poet said, but if you had been sailing for seventy-five years, a full stop and a sinking sloop wouldn't be half as comfortable as sailing on.

There was one of those "tired farmers" as a group called themselves who thought we were mighty inquisitive about their business when it didn't amount to "nothing" and one former professional man, just as ethical today as he ever was, didn't want anything in the paper about himself.

Neither did we, for it is a collective enjoyment to be had at the horseshoe grounds and it is a collective account we are writing. Anyone we have happened to specify is not alone, for there are others trying to pass the time of day the same way. Walt Nicoles is secretary of the club and memberships are invited among any

STRUCK BY CAR, ESCAPES DEATH

L. Amasa Wilson Is Only Slightly Injured by Auto Accident

What might easily have been a fatal accident occurred at 6 o'clock last night, on the Edendale crossing, when a machine driven by L. Amasa Wilson, of 649 West Harvard street, was struck by a Glendale Pacific Electric car, while waiting for an Edendale car to pass.

The fact that his automobile was of fairly substantial make probably saved Mr. Wilson's life, he feels. As it was, the California top was demolished and numerous other mechanical injuries suffered.

Mr. Wilson himself came out of the accident with no further injury than a slightly wrenched back.

In explaining the accident, he states that while waiting for the Edendale car to pass, a Glendale car approached from Los Angeles, at a high rate of speed, and struck him from the rear, carrying his machine about twenty feet.

Interesting Program For Thursday Club

The Thursday Afternoon Club of Glendale will meet Thursday afternoon, June 7, at 2:30, at the home of Mrs. A. L. Bancroft, 1423 South Brand boulevard. Mayo Thomas, recently of Kansas and a personal friend of Senator Arthur Capper of that state, will be the speaker. His subject will be "Teach Your Boys and Girls Self-Confidence."

Mahala Wichert of 1411 East Harvard street, a pupil of Miss Dorothy Wright, will give two dance numbers, and Helen White will entertain with whistling numbers. This will be the last social meeting of the year.

Radio descriptions of the girl have been broadcasted, but no trace of her has been found.

'General' Robert E. Lee Tells of Oil Transactions

FORT WORTH, Tex., June 5.—Saying that he was merely a figurehead in the affairs of the General Lee Development interests, "General" Robert A. Lee, 76 years of age, defendant in the first of the federal government's oil fraud trials, took the witness stand in his own behalf yesterday. He said the management of the oil company was in the hands of Charles Sherwin and Harry H. Schwartz, co-defendants. Lee said he only signed letters, most of which he did not read. He went into extensive detail in explaining his experiences in the oil promotion work.

GETS OPTION ON 2-STORY HOUSE

Post Has Chance to Buy Place at 128 S. Maryland For $20,000

Local Legionnaires are being urged by Commander Chalmer D. Day to attend the meeting of the post Friday night at its hall, 610 East Broadway, in order to vote upon the acquisition of a centrally located clubhouse site.

Trustees of the post were authorized at the last meeting to secure a twelve day option upon the property at 128 South Maryland avenue for $20,000. Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Aston, owners of this property, have offered to sell it to the Legion for $20,000.

The property has a frontage of 50 feet on the east side of Maryland avenue and a depth of 150 feet to a twenty-foot alley.

The site is improved with a two story frame residence which has been subdivided into three apartments. On the rear is a three room garage house.

Post's Trustees

Trustees of the post this year are: Emil O. Kiefer of the firm of Kiefer & Eyerick, 305 East Broadway; R. C. Plume of the Monarch Auto Supply Company, 204 South Brand boulevard; and Eugene J. Wix of 111 East Broadway.

The executive committee at present is composed of Dr. W. C. Mabry; E. P. Hayward, member of the realty firm of Hayward and McCartney of 142 South Brand boulevard; Dru Nicoles, wire chief for the local district of the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company; Col. James W. Everington of 531 North Louise street; and Attorney James L. McBryde of 111 East Broadway.

Both the trustees and the members of the executive committee feel that the proposition which is now before the post is worthy of attention. They believe that a centrally located clubhouse is very desirable both from the standpoint of accessibility and the standpoint of financial return. They call attention to the fact that the present income from the property will pay the carrying charges on the investment.

TODAY—Japs like western music; Kreisler is well received.
TOMORROW—New ententes in making; new British friendships; the royal ambassadors.

By DUKE N. PARRY,
For International News Service

TOKIO, June 5.—Fritz Kreisler, noted violinist of the West, has learned on his visit to Tokio that Western music is at last established as an important part of the life of the Japanese and foreign communities in the Far Eastern capital. Kreisler, arriving shortly after the founding in Tokio of the first symphony orchestra in this city, has gone even further than have any of the other Western artists who have visited Tokio. He has broken all records for attendance at the Imperial Theatre, his second concert yielding the high payment from attendance Y12,000 ($6000). He has been the recipient of medals from the Societe Musicale de Tokio, and from other organizations. And he has been interviewed in Tokio and Yokohama with the widest assortment of questions ever asked a visiting Westerner by Japanese reporters. His first day at the port of Yokohama Kreisler was met by representatives of practically every vernacular newspaper in Tokio. "What are your impressions of Japan?" "At what figure do you value your violin?" "What kind of music do you think the Japanese people like best?"—these were just the opening salutes of the Japanese press, fired at Kreisler a few moments after he had walked down the gangplank from the steamer President Grant.

Kreisler's visit to Japan was perhaps better timed than has been that of Madame Schumann-Heink, Mischa Elman, Pavlowa, or any of the others who have been on the programs of that energetic New York manager, Mr. A. Strok, who pioneered in bringing Western artists to the Far East. For Kreisler came immediately following the first concert of the Tokio Symphony orchestra, an organization of sixty musicians who have given musical Tokio its greatest thrill of the year. The Tokio Symphony is headed by J. M. Gershkovitch, a Russian, who was well known in the old St Petersburg musical life. Mr. Gershkovitch has surrounded himself with numerous other Russians who are at present compelled to live away from their homeland, and, in addition to these, he has placed in his organization several Americans and Frenchmen who are willing to do their part toward giving the Japanese capital and its foreign community semi-monthly musical treats. The first concert of the Tokio Symphony orchestra was held under the auspices of the Imperial hotel, the second under the management of the Tokio Asahigraph, a Japanese pictorial newspaper, which has set a pace in its interest in Western pictures, Western comics and Western music.

Josef Heifetz will be the second musical star offered to the foreign and Japanese music lovers of Tokio. Heifetz will also come under the direction of Mr. A. Strok. As the Japanese people are more interested in the violin than they are in other forms of western music, Heifetz is assured of a great welcome here. The first section of the Imperial Theatre to fill at any of these concerts by western artists is the gallery, for here the students from the various Tokio universities may have an opportunity to see in action the great musician whose records they have heard on the victrola. Kreisler is agreed with other western artists who have been in Tokio that the appreciation of the Japanese for western music is the finest sort. At the end of his first concert Kreisler had given what everyone thought must be his final encore. But while many left their seats and proceeded to leave the theatre, the most ardent of Japanese lovers of the violin and Kreisler's art remained behind to entreat him for one more number. Kreisler yielded and despite the fact that the aisles were filled with those who were leaving the theatre, and the lobby was crowded, the moment the great violinist walked back on the stage a hush went over the house. And when he raised his violin for the final playing of the "Caprice Viennoise," there was not a sound in any part of Tokio's greatest theatre.

ECONOMY IN PURCHASING SUPPLIES
Wholesale Prices Should Be Taken Advantage Of

BY CAREFUL attention to details the expense of running a car can be held down to a minimum figure. For example, in the matter of buying supplies—engine oil in particular—a great many motorists keep no oil whatever on hand, but buy it a quart or two at a time as required to keep up the crank case level from the filling station where they take on gasoline. Oil bought by the quart is a very expensive article, as compared with the same commodity purchased by the barrel or even in the five or ten gallon lot, and if the reader is unfamiliar with the enormous difference between the wholesale and retail price, it will pay him to look these figures up and see how much he can save by buying it in quantity, to keep in stock in his garage, as compared with buying it in driblets to meet the requirements of the moment. Oil can be kept indefinitely without deterioration or loss through evaporation, so that one need not hesitate to lay in a goodly supply. One good thing about dependence upon the private stock of oil in one's own garage rather than upon the output of the casual filling station's oil pump is that one has complete control of quality and this quality is uniform. In buying oil for stocking one's own garage, sealed packages only of some brand of oil, selected for its known satisfactory qualities should be used, which is that best guarantee of safe and effective lubrication that is attainable. On the contrary, the practice of buying oil by the quart to meet the demands of the moment involves considerable risk that, at times, the quality of the lubricant obtained may be far from what it should be or at least not what is best adapted to the engine's needs. No one knows what grade of oil one is getting at some filling stations. This has to be taken entirely on faith. While there is no question that if one runs more than a thousand or two miles a year, it pays to buy oil in quantity and keep it on hand, it is by no means so clear that there is anything to be saved by keeping a private stock of gasoline on one's premises. Unless a car is used pretty intensively and a large quantity of fuel is consumed and unless the conditions are such that evaporation and other losses can be kept down, the private gasoline storage tank is not a very paying proposition.

DECARBONIZING, ETC.

V. asks: (1) Does carrying oil too high in the crankcase tend to cause carbonization? (2) Does the use of oxygen to remove carbon injure the cylinders or pistons in any way? (3) Please explain the best method of removing carbon. (4) What is the best way of renewing leather upholstery?

Answer: (1) Yes. It may result in there being too great a depth of oil for the connecting-rod ends to dip into, too much oil being splashed, a greater tendency for oil to work up onto the piston heads and thus more likelihood of rapid corbonization. (2) There are some engines upon which the oxygen method should not be used, according to their manufacturers and we advise their warning to be heeded. Generally speaking, however, we see no risk in using this method, if it is applied properly. A professional should do the job. One bad feature of the method is that the incombustible part of the deposits is not fully removed and works down into the engine. (3) Removing the head and scraping all parts is the best method and the oxygen process is the next. (4) Clean it with a sponge moistened in mild soap suds and dry with a chamois. When it is perfectly dry a reliable leather dressing may be used.

NOISE WHEN PULLING HARD

W. W. writes: My Ford has lots of power on level going, but when climbing a hill it dies down as though it did not get gasoline. When it is pulling hard there is a peculiar whistling sound, but I think there are no leaks around the manifold. I have looked over the carburetor and the gasoline system, but cannot find the trouble. What can you suggest?

Answer: We believe you are right in thinking that the fuel feed is inadequate, but just why we do not know. Are you sure that the hole in the gasoline tank filler cap is open, and are you certain that the gasoline line is perfectly clear? Generally, if gasoline gets very low in the carburetor, there are backfires, but this may not always be the case. Have you tried the compression of your cylinders? If not, we suggest that you hand crank each one separately, and, if you find that they leak gas badly, this will account partly, at least, for your lack of power on hills. Of course you have tried to adjust your mixture for better results. If these suggestions do not bear fruit, please write us again.

GEARS FLY OUT OF POSITION

R. T. G. writes: I adjusted the bearing of my ——— car, and since then, when I put it in high gear and let go of the lever, it quite often flies out of position. I have looked everything over, but cannot find what the matter is. What is your opinion?

Answer: We do not know what bearing it is that you have adjusted, and so cannot tell you very much, but it may be that your adjustment was such that it allows some lost motion or shake in the clutch shaft, and that this is the reason why the gears do not stay in. If you will let us know exactly what you did, we will take it up with you again.

Uncle Wiggily Bedtime Stories

— By Howard R. Garis —

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE STAMPS

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily hopped inside his hollow stump bungalow, he saw his muskrat lady housekeeper, Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy sitting at the table, with a pile of letters in front of her.

"My! What a lot of mail came this morning!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose. For he had gone out directly after breakfast to look for an adventure.

Not finding an adventure, Uncle Wiggily hopped home again, and saw Nurse Jane with the pile of letters in front of her.

"This isn't mail that has just come in," spoke Nurse Jane. "It is mail that I want to send out. I am going to give a little party, Uncle Wiggily, and these are the invitations. I have them all ready to put in the postoffice, but I need some stamps. Letters won't go without stamps any more than an automobile will go without gasoline."

"That is very true," said Uncle Wiggily with a jolly laugh, "And it will give me something to do to hop to the postoffice in the old hollow tree and bring you back some stamps."

"And when you bring back the stamps," went on Nurse Jane, "if you aren't too busy, you might stick them on the invitations for me. Put the stamps on and mail the party notes."

"I'll do that!" promised the bunny gentleman.

Along he hopped to the hollow tree postoffice, over the fields and through the woods, and soon he had bought a sheet of sticky stamps to be put on the letters.

But when Uncle Wiggily once more reached his hollow stump Nurse Jane wasn't there. However, she had left a little written note on the pile of party invitations. The note said:

"Please put the stamps on for me and mail them, dear Uncle Wiggily. I have gone to the moving pictures with Mrs. Fluffytail, the sheep lady."

"Oh, very well," spoke Uncle Wiggily to himself. "So I'm to be a stamp sticker today, am I? No matter—I may have an adventure that way as well as in any other."

So he sat down to put the stamps on the envelopes. And, as there were a great many of them, Uncle Wiggily placed on the table a wet sponge with which to moisten the stamps and make them sticky.

"Well, this would be a lot of fun if I had some one to help me stick on the stamps," thought the bunny gentleman after a while. "If Jackie and Peetie Bow Wow, the puppy dog boys should happen to run along now they could wet some of the stamps with their moist, red tongues."

But, though the bunny gentleman kept sticking stamps on Nurse Jane's invitations, no doggie boys happened along and Mr. Longears was becoming rather tired.

All of a sudden there was a noise at the front door.

"Maybe that is Jackie or Peetie now!" thought Uncle Wiggily.

But instead in stalked the Bob Cat with a hungry look on his face.

"What are you doing, Uncle Wiggily?" growled the Bob Cat.

"Sticking stamps," answered the bunny with a shivery twinkle on his pink nose. "Do you want to help me?" asked Mr. Longears, thinking perhaps he might play some sort of trick on the Bob Cat with the sticky stamps.

"No, I'm not going to help you," growled the bad chap. "But just as soon as you have finished sticking those stamps on I'm going to nibble your ears—that's what I'm going to do. I'll sit down in a chair and wait for you."

"Oh, dear!" sighed Uncle Wiggily and then, just as the Bob Cat was going to sit down in the chair the bunny gentleman slipped under the bad chap a paw full of wet, sticky stamps so that the Bob Cat sat right on them.

The Bob Cat did not at first feel the sticky stamps, on account of his thick fur. But after a while when all the invitations were ready to mail, the Bob Cat said:

"Well, I'll get up now and nibble your ears!" But when he tried to get up out of the chair he couldn't, because he was stuck fast by the sticky stamps.

"Ha! Ha!" laughed the bunny uncle, "Now you can't nibble me, and I'm going to call a police dog and have you arrested. And that's just what happened. So the bunny's ears weren't nibbled that day.

And if the oil can doesn't slide down hill on the front steps and bump the cabbage on its head, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the rubber plant.

BILLY WHISKERS

By FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

"A good time to steal aboard," said Button as the three chums were planning their trip, "will be just after the crew have had their dinner and are lying around, resting or sleeping."

"Yes, but we must not go aboard until the day they sail, or they would find us and put us off," said Billy.

"But how are we going to know when they are going to sail?" inquired Stubby.

"That is easily found out," replied Billy. "We will go down on the dock and poke around and listen to what they say. Besides finding out when they will put to sea, we can tell the way the captain treats men whether or not we are going to sail with him. For I am not going to trust my skin to a captain that swears and treats his men mean. I shall be in no hurry to put to sea with a captain or crew until I have looked them well over, for it is a very long trip from San Francisco to Panama, even if we have a good-natured crew and pleasant weather. The worst of it is they don't go into any port where we could get off if we didn't like it. So when we sail, we ship for the whole trip, good or bad."

"Sailors are generally pretty good fellows when at sea, and make great pets of any animals on board, if they are not a drinking crew, but if they are, animals or people need their good angels to protect them," said Button.

"Let's get started," said Billy. And the Chums began to pick their way down the side of the high hill towards where they saw the vessel loading.

In about half an hour they were down by the water's edge, near the pier alongside of which the vessel lay. But what was their disgust to see a big, swarthy, dark-skinned man with gold loop earrings in his ears and a red handkerchief tied around his neck in place of a collar, bossing the sailors around in a loud, harsh voice, swearing at them, whether they loaded right or wrong.

"Well, we won't sail with you on your old, dirty ship, that is one thing sure," said Billy, after one look at him. "Do you know he looks to me as if he needed a bath. Do either of you dare me to butt him into the water?"

(Tomorrow you'll see whether Billy took the dare or not.)

DINNER STORIES

A colonel unexpectedly entered the drill room, where he found two soldiers, one of whom was reading a letter, while the other was listening and at the same time stopping up the ears of the reader.

"What are you doing there," the puzzled officer inquired.

"Well, you see, colonel, Maguire here can't read, and he had a letter from his girl this afternoon, so I am reading it to him."

"And you, Maguire, what in the world are you doing?"

"Oh, sir, I'm stopping up his ears. I don't mind his reading my letter, but I don't want him to hear what she's written."—Chicago Tribune.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

The activities of Governor George Wylie Paul Hunt of Arizona in defending initiative and referendum measures and other progressive features in his state before and since his election have drawn attention to him.

Gov. Hunt returned home from Siam, where he had been U. S. minister, in February of last year, just in time to step knee deep into the fight to prevent defeat of proposed amendments to the state constitution, which would have tended to destroy the I. and R., the direct primary, and other progressive features.

GOV. GEORGE W. HUNT

Following that, he climbed into the race for nomination for governor on the Democratic ticket—making the direct primary one of the main planks of his platform. He won the nomination and was elected by the largest majority ever given a governor of that state.

Governor Hunt was born in Huntsville, Mo., in 1859. His parents were George W. and Sarah E. (Yates) Hunt. He attended the public and private schools in Missouri for about eight years.

In 1881 he went to Arizona and worked as a ranchman. Later he went to mining copper in Globe, Ariz., and worked as a clerk. Finally he became president of the Old Dominion Commercial Company, the leading commercial company in Globe.

He was elected a member of the territorial legislature in 1893 and re-elected in 1895. He was elected to the senate in 1895-99, in 1905 and 1909, and was president of the senate in 1905 and 1909. He was a delegate to the Democratic national convention in 1900 and was elected as delegate to the constitutional convention in Arizona and as president thereof; he was elected as the first governor of the state and was twice re-elected.

During the war Governor Hunt acted as a conciliator for the United States upon the direct request of President Wilson to adjust the strikes in the labor camps of Arizona in 1917. In 1919 he was appointed as United States minister to Siam, and while there negotiated the present treaty with that country.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON

THE ECTOPLASM

The League of Nations is now defined,
It's a political ectoplasm.
A. Conan Doyle called that to mind
Without a mental quirk or spasm.

It has gone on its way to fame,
Given vague titles four years or more;
And now that we've really heard its name,
We know no more than we did before.

But if the nations are seeking peace,
If they would really bridge the chasm,
We have our doubts if war will cease.
Through efforts of any ectoplasm.

CONFESSIONS OF A CYNIC

I can feel punk any time I want to by sitting down and reading an article by some physical culturist. I don't actually believe the world is getting any worse. There are times when I don't see how it could, and that's a consolation, too.

I don't believe men and their wives quarrel when picking out wallpaper if they each pick it out for a different house.

I see by the paper there are more poets in the world now than ever before. Maybe that's what is the matter.

I believe there is something in every magazine that is worth reading. The ads seldom fail to be interesting.

I have had a lot of trouble, but there is one thing I have to be thankful for. Nobody has ever inveigled me into politics.

I see some scientist says the sun is cooling off and that we will all freeze. Well, we are getting in training for that every winter. It will not catch us napping.

Miss Malaria Mooch became very much peeved the other day in her home town of Magnolia, Ark., because the young gentleman with whom she was keeping company happened to walk home from the postoffice with another girl, and she pulled her gun and hauled off and shot this young man and killed him. The jury found she was not guilty of any infraction of the law, as she is very beautiful and the young man wasn't much good, anyhow.

The next week in the same town an old guy shot a burglar through the arm when the latter was ransacking his house, and the old guy was sent up for twenty years.

Burke and Delaney In Preliminary Bout

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 5.—Jack Burke, Pittsbury light heavyweight sparring partner of the Jack Dempsey camp, and Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul, one of the Gibbons party, were tentatively announced today for one of the preliminaries on July 4.

Frankie Grandatta, Pacific coast flyweight, and Babe Herman are expected in Great Falls shortly to assume the responsibility of putting the champion in speedy shape. Eugene Criqui, world's featherweight champion, is expected to also help put the champion in condition.

Dempsey expects to hold the surplus weight annexed during his fishing trip until final training period just before the title bout. Light routine work is the program this week in the Dempsey camp.

Claims Purchase of Seattle Club Fraud

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Charging that the purchase of the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league "was and is a fraud upon the public attending and interested in baseball" and alleging that William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago Cubs and the Los Angeles club of the Coast league is the owner of the majority of stock in the northern club, William H. McCarthy, president of the coast league, through his attorney, Harry Stafford, filed an answer late Monday to the injunction suit brought to force his recognition of Charles Lockard as a director.

In a seventeen page legal brief McCarthy defends his action in refusing to recognize Lockard as a director and in voting to defeat such recognition. He alleges that Lockard and Wade Killifer are only agents of Wrigley in the purchase. He asserts that the league by-laws made it mandatory upon him to scrutinize the purchase of the Seattle club when Lockard and Killifer failed to satisfy him of the legitimacy of their purchase and that he was justified in denying Lockard recognition and in voting as he did in the capacity of president of the league.

Town of Shelby Buys $75,000 Fight Tickets

SHELBY, Mont., June 5.—With a bona fide population of 1000 and an estimated boom population of as many more, $75,000 worth of fight tickets have already been purchased locally for the Dempsey-Gibbons championship bout on July 4.

Not to be caught short on accommodations for the thousands of visitors, Shelby has laid out a 137-acre tourist park, said to be the largest municipally owned auto park in the world. It will accommodate 15,000 persons and more than 5,000 automobiles.

Dempsey's Stable Mate Signs for Two Bouts

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 5.—Billy Wells, English welterweight and one of Champion Jack Dempsey's sparring partners here, was matched Monday to meet Joe Simonich, inter-mountain welterweight champion, at Butte, on June 20. The Englishman will also box Pete Bross, a Montana middleweight, in Great Falls on June 30.

Home runs by Fournier and T. Griffith and the pitching of Grimes brought the Dodgers in for a 5 to 3 winner over the Pirates, sending the teams into a tie for second place in the National league.

Girls, take heart.

Read this and learn how to be young at sixty.

Mrs. Caleb Fox of Philadelphia is past three score. She is a grandmother to ten children.

Her hair is snowy white.

But she is young. Which only goes to prove that there is a lot in that well-worn phrase "We are just as old as we feel."

More than once Mrs. Fox has proved her youth by turning in golf scores that broke eighty-five.

A year ago this winter and again last February, this kindly, silver-haired lady defeated the present national title holder, Miss Collett, and made a "79" at Belleair doing it.

She won over Mrs. Alex Smith in the semi-finals and then defeated Mrs. Dorothy Hurd—yes, the same Mrs. Hurd who has held the amateur title both here and in Great Britain.

Mrs. Fox plays just a fine, steady game. You could not expect phenomenal bursts of golf from anyone past sixty. Her putting leaves mighty little to be desired, and her long game is straight and true. The roughs or pits seldom trap her balls, and therein lies her strength.

There is many a person past sixty who can well afford to take a tip from this lady's accomplishments. For many a grouch could be chased off the earth with a little fresh air and something to keep it occupied.

So, all of you on the other side of sixty who just haven't much to do but sit around waiting for the clock to strike twelve, take up golf and get young again.

Dundee to Win, So Kilbane Declares

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, June 5.—Looking none the worse for his one-punch knockout, Johnny Kilbane today accepted the passing of his featherweight title with philosophical calm, and even went so far as to pick the man who will succeed his successor, Eugene Criqui.

The new champion and Johnny Dundee are to meet in a championship bout either July 28 or August 4, at the Polo grounds, it is said on good authority. Dundee will win, according to Kilbane.

He based his opinion on the belief that the Frenchman is inclined to uncover his jaw in order to make use of his now famous right hand.

"He can be hit," Kilbane declared tersely, "and any boxer who can be hit can be beaten."

At that the former champion could hardly do other than to concede that Criqui mustered a surprisingly strong defense. This was accomplished, by humping his shoulder well over his jaw and keeping it there, except at rare intervals. It is these intervals that will afford any smart boxer the opportunity he needs, in the opinion of Kilbane.

That he himself did not take advantage of these temporary exposures can be laid to the matter of bad hands, Kilbane explained.

"I hit him three times," he said, "but after the first punch there was nothing behind my wallops. The hand had gone bad. My left went out of commission in the first round. These are facts, not alibis. I want everybody to know that I think Criqui is a great little fighter and deserved to win."

Criqui put in a quiet day at his cottage at Manhasset, L. I., denying reports that he intended to sail for France almost immediately. Through an intrepreter he made it clear that he intended to go through with his agreement to box Dundee in defense of the title within sixty days.

The fight itself will go down in the records as a knockout of Kilbane. The real knockout, however, was sustained by Charles A. Stoneham, the promoter, who lost no less than $50,000 on the transaction. The receipts have been estimated as $91,200.

Champion Resumes Work of Training

GREAT FALLS, Mont., June 5.—With a long jaunt on the road, punching the sand bag and shadow boxing, Champion Jack Dempsey has resumed light workouts after a nine day lay-off vacationing in the mountains. Dempsey picked up some weight during his idle days in the mountains but will work this off gradually. He will resume sparring with his partners Wednesday or Thursday.

Mike Trent, Chicago detective, arrived in the Dempsey camp Monday. He will act as personal body guard for the champion until after the Independence day battle. Trent acted in a similar capacity at the Toledo and Jersey City Dempsey camps.

Realty and Revenge

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

Years ago when Adrian Capper arrived in Minden, Peter Weems extended the heartiest greeting and became his first friend. Then Peter urged the advantages of the Coombs house as a residence, said that the town was growing that way, and ended by making the sale. After that Peter paid no more attention to Adrian than did the rest.

Adrian lived in magnificent loneliness in the great house. He had all the books he wished, a pleasant garden and some generous fruit trees. Not given to cultivate his neighbors, he was without friends. In time he decided he had moved to the wrong town and to the worst section. A planing mill was erected within the block. Certainly Minden grew in his direction, as Peter had said, but it was commercial Minden. The old house looked out of place.

"I will never sell," Adrian told himself stubbornly, "until I can get as much as I paid. If I could sell the place to Peter Weems and make him pay for it I'd be happy."

No one in Minden who knew how Adrian, now grown old, had spent so much time in the house could have guessed that he hated it. As his years advanced, the memories of boyhood days in another city became fresher. He thought always of going back, and balked each time at the idea of desering the house or selling it for next to nothing.

"It would be like retreating," he said. "I've paid a good price for it, kept it up, and pretended I considered it the best in Minden, as it is. No, I'll stick here until a railroad, or something, turns up to make it valuable. I'll sell it to Peter Weems."

Perhaps necessity begets ingenuity, or, maybe, Adrian forsook his plans. He said no more about moving and busied himself with writing, and digging in the yard. A young man came to visit him and took into the town a story that old Adrian was failing. The young man was affable, and, moreover, the possessed knowledge of the habits and story of Minden's recluse. Hospitality and curiosity welcomed him to the informal sessions of the Men's Club.

"Is Adrian, perhaps, your uncle?" It was Peter Weems who put the question. "No one here knows much about him, he keeps so much to himself."

"A sort of an uncle, and yet I know little more of him than you. He's a lonely old man and, I am afraid, won't be with us very long."

The town was prepared, then, when Arthur Long announced the death of Adrian Capper. It was disappointed, but not surprised, at the private funeral. Adrian, the paper said, would be buried in his old home town.

Long stayed behind to settle the estate.

"You're a real estate man," he said to Peter Weems, "and maybe you can advise me. The house is mine now, and I've been thinking of selling it and yet I don't like to. If anyone asks you, tell them it is not for sale."

"You're thinking it won't bring much?"

"No. I am hoping I can come back here soon. It's a rather forlorn hope, for I have been away from my business too long now." The young man looked at Peter and smiled meaningly.

"Did you know Adrian well? No, guess no one did. Did it ever strike you why he stayed at home so much? Now, look here, Weems, don't tell a soul, but—well, it was drink. Adrian has the largest stock of pre-Volstead booze buried somewhere in that great yard of his that there is in the state. I'm coming back one of these days to find it."

Next week, after Long had gone, Peter Weems walked through the Capper place and was chased off the yard by a dog. A caretaker had been installed. He had noticed some mounds of earth. There were men he knew of who would give a great deal to have what was buried there. Peter wondered how much he would give, himself. He wrote to Long at the address the other had given, making a modest offer, and received a curt reply. Then Peter offered more. When the price was equal to that which Adrian Capper had paid for the place Long answered, saying he had found he could not give the time from his work to return to Minden, and the deal was closed.

After all of the papers had been signed and recorded, Peter Weems started digging in the Capper yard. In his old home town, Adrian Capper counted out the money Arthur Long had given him and laughed until his sides ached.

"Had to pretend I was dead to do it," he said, handing a commission to the younger man, "and it cost me a lot. If I could only go back now and see old Peter digging for something he will never find."

NEW VERSION OF THE APRON

The apron comes forward to express a new idea in simplicity and development. It is fashioned of plain unbleached muslin and trimmed with a filet crochet edge in delicate rose color. The design lends itself to different shapes, for the bib may be slashed and the upper corners cut in points, or it may be rounded away at the top. Embroidery also may be added to the bib and the corners of the apron. For a fancy, use organdy and trim it with lace insertion to form panels, finishing the edges with lace. Medium size, as illustrated, requires seven-eighths yard thirty-two or thirty-six inch material.

Pictorial Review Apron No. 1487. Sizes, thirty-six, forty and forty-four inches bust. Price, 25 cents. Dress No. 1293. Sizes, thirty-four to forty-eight inches bust. Price, 35 cents.

INDIVIDUAL AND AUTHENTIC

Inspired by the mode for things Egyptian, this slip-on kimono frock elects to be developed in printed and plain cotton crepe. The front panel of the skirt rises to a graceful situation, overriding the girdle, which would define the waist-line. The sides are unstitched far enough to provide pockets, but the stitching is continued at the sides and lower edge to make the pocket more than a semblance. Medium size requires 1½ yard 36-inch figured and 2⅝ yards 40-inch plain material.

Pictorial Review Dress No. 1625. Sizes 36 to 48 inches bust. Price 35 cents.

Grounds and grand stands owned outright or held by lease by the major leagues are estimated to be worth nearly ten million dollars.

ANSWERED LETTERS

M. A. R.—The powders you have used must have contained something that disagreed with your very sensitive skin. Another time try plain rice flour without either a scent or coloring.

Troubled—A skillful chiropodist may be able to cure the bunion, as you are still so very young. There is very little that can be done if a bunion is allowed to grow for any time other than to relieve it from pressure and paint it with iodine whenever there is any soreness.

A Reader—Unless a corset or a girdle is needed to improve the appearance of the figure, there should be no reason why it should be worn.

Peggy.—A girl of fifteen, five feet three inches, should weigh 110 pounds, the one who is an inch taller, at eighteen years, should weigh 115 pounds.

The Chicago Boy—The best hair brushes are those with the bristles about an inch long and not woven too closely together. You seem to have a mistaken idea about removing dandruff from the scalp. Scraping it off by means of either the comb or a very stiff brush will only irritate the scalp and make it more unhealthy than if you left the dandruff alone.

Massage crude or olive oil into the scalp some hours before you shampoo (over night would be best) and when you shampoo the dandruff will be dislodged without any further effort. This oil treatment should also cure the tendency to dandruff.

Lassie—If the lump on the back of your neck is fat, you can get rid of it by massaging it.

Sal.—When the hair splits on the ends and is also losing its color, you will generally find that the scalp is not secreting healthfully. Massage will improve this condition, aided by use of a good hair tonic several times each week.

Worried Ann—I will be glad to mail you a formula for freckles if you request it, but it cannot be printed at this time.

Motherless Girl.—A girl of nineteen years who is six feet and a half inch tall, is not overweight at 132 pounds. It would injure your hair and look artificial if you dyed the part that had become sunburned, moreover, you probably could not make it match the natural shade, anyway.

Espanel—The preparations made from honey and almond are usually satisfactory for keeping the hands soft and white. The woman who eliminated sugar from her diet and did not lose weight may have eaten many other things that she should not; for instance, too much starch and fats. Agar or just plain bran taken with the meals will help to keep the system cleared.

Fat—It would take too much space to print a diet for reduction, but I will mail one if requested. There is an X-ray treatment for goiter, but it should not be allowed to become serious before being cared for in this way.

Mrs. W. E. A.—Consult your doctor about the condition of your scalp.

Bride Reader—"Is it all right to wash my bird's-eye maple dressing table with luke-warm water and a good white soap?"

Answer—Yes, a good varnished finish may be cleaned in this way—although it is safe to add one tablespoon of turpentine and three tablespoons of linseed oil to every quart of the warm water you use. These fluids, mixed with the water, feed the varnish and prevent dryness and cracking. Change for a clean solution as often as it becomes solid, and wipe dry with a clean cloth.

A Hard Worker—"The varnish on my hardwood floors is in dreadful condition. My husband and I wish to remove it and put on a good spar varnish. But the commercial varnish-removers cost so much and we are wondering if there isn't anything cheaper that we can use."

Answer—Either potash or washing soda solution will remove varnish and paint. These fluids are very caustic and injure the skin of the hands. To work with either of them, have the room well aired. Also cover your nose and mouth with a folded, dampened handkerchief. Leave the room while the varnish is softening. When it is soft, it may be removed by hot water put on and taken off with a mop and mop wringer (the hands cannot be used to wring the mop, as no glove will resist the caustic). To use the washing soda, dissolve one pound of it in five quarts of boiling water. To use the potash, dissolve one pound of it in six quarts of cold water.

Fancy-Worker—"I have heard about Umbrella Drop Lights. Can you describe one, as I have never seen one?"

Answer—The Umbrella Drop Light Shades are much used in children's rooms. They delight the little ones. Make the shade of pink watered silk over a wire umbrella-shaped frame (this balances on the bulb). The wood standard (into the top of which the bulb is screwed) is wound with green satin all the way down, but at the bottom it is padded with cotton and the cotton covered with more of the green satin (to represent a green, mossy bank). A small dressed doll is sewed onto this bank, beneath the umbrella, in a sitting position.

Side Talks

by Ruth Cameron

SILVER VERSUS GOLD

Here is an old maxim I came across the other day. Nothing new. Just a different way of saying an old truth:

"Speech hath many pitfalls, silence hath none."

I think I shall write it out and hang it over my desk.

Only it isn't at my desk that I shall need it, for when I'm there I'm generally not talking.

What I really need to do is to engrave it in my heart so that it will always be with me, ready to help me when I need help.

My Worst Regrets

If I should ever have the misfortune to get drowned (which is not at all the kind of exit I should choose) and that thing should happen to me which tradition assigns to all drowning folks, I know that the things I should feel worst about as fate unreeled my past life before me would be the things I have said that I shouldn't have said.

Not wicked things, especially, but things that would have been so much better left unsaid. Some of them unkind things, some of them things I had no right to put into words, some of them unfair things.

Of course some of the things that one regrets saying, one has spoken hastily or in a moment when the inhibitions of ordinary life have been loosened by some form of intoxication—there are many forms of intoxication you know besides that forbidden by the Volstead act; there's the intoxication induced by buying a new hat, or having a party, or being flattered, or having the one man or the one girl in the world show a preference for your society, to mention just a few.

But there are many other things that we do not speak in haste, but hesitate over before we say them. That's the time to remember that proverb.

The person who can hold his tongue when the temptation is present to do otherwise has a big handicap over the person who can't control his tongue.

The Quiet Woman Wins

Recently I attended an executive board meeting at which a delicate matter had to be discussed. Almost everyone was much excited. Many half-baked opinions were expressed. But there was one woman there who gave her opinion thoughtfully and considerингly at the beginning, and then, when all the excitement broke loose, simply sat quiet while the others sputtered and blundered and said many things that they surely recalled most uncomfortably after they got home and thought it all over.

In the end they adopted a resolution which embodied what the quiet woman had said before all the excitement broke out.

Quietness, an impression of restraint, generally has far more effect on others than much talking.

Besides not leaving a bad taste in one's own mind.

Once more:

"Speech hath many pitfalls, silence hath none."

Diet and Health

By Lulu Hunt Peters, M.D.

Author of "Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories"

PRINCIPLES OF CORRECT DIET, CON'T.

Vitamins—No. V

In yesterday's paper I told you how the vitamins have been added to our knowledge of food values but have not made the knowledge we had already any the less valuable. I told you about the care of the experimental animals in the nutrition laboratories.

Small animals such as rats, mice, dogs, guinea pigs and monkeys are usually used in these experimental laboratories because the trouble of preparing and the expense of food is very much less than it is for the larger animals. The chief reason however for their greater value for experimental purposes is that they grow and reach maturity and reproduce in a much shorter time than the larger animals and the effects of their diet will show not only on themselves but on their young in a comparatively short time. Facts learned from these experiments can be very rapidly accumulated.

The common rat is one of the great scourges of the world but in transmitting plague and destroying foodstuffs but a few of them have at last found a use; they are contributing a good deal to our knowledge of foods. The rat, like man, is omniverous—that is, it eats everything; its tissues, therefore, must need in general the same food elements that the human tissues do. It bears young when it is three months old and has five litters before it is fourteen months old. So the rats' diet also shows very soon its effects upon reproduction and the offspring.

For a study of deficiency diseases—rickets, for instance—animals are given diets which will produce rickets in them. Different foods and other factors are then applied to find their worth in effectng a cure.

Rickets, as you know, is a very serious disease of children and babies. If severe, the deformities of the bones last throughout life, not only causing stunted growth and twisted limbs with their attendant unhappiness, but in girl children deformity of the pelves may be permanent so that they are not able to bear children normally when they marry.

The tests that are used to find out the different properties of foods are, very briefly, as follows:

A certain food is given alone, and its effects noted over a certain period. Then to this food being tested, other foods will be added, and their effects noted. For instance, it has been found that grains, even though they have all of the known elements, will not support growth, and, finally, the animal fed on grains alone will die long before its time. Even the wheat grain, the most perfect grain, is a very imperfect food used alone. All of the grains have been tested and it has been found that they all are deficient as a sole food. It has been discovered that a large part of the leafy part of the plants with their growing cells—the active part of the plant—must be included in the diet to supplement the deficiency in the seed and the roots or tubers, which are the storage parts of a plant.

McCollum has, perhaps, done more work in this line than any other investigator. Because he has found the very great importance of the leafy vegetables and milk to supply other deficiencies, he has termed the milk and leafy vegetables "protective foods." The human intestinal tract is not large enough to take sufficient amounts of the green, leafy foods alone to protect, so milk is added because it also supplies these deficiencies.

Remember me when I am going away,
Gone far away into the silent land:
When you can no more hold me by the hand,
Nor I half turn to go, yet turning stay.
Rmember me when no more, day by day,
You tell me of our future that you planned;
Only remember me! You understand
It will be late to counsel then or pray.
Yet if you should forget me for a while
And afterwards remember, do not grieve;
For if the darkness and corruption leave
A vestige of the thought that once I had,
Better by far you should forget and smile
Than that you should remember and be sad.

With the Women of Today

By Edith Moriarty

Mrs. Allie Dickerman

Mrs. Allie Dickerman has the distinction of being the first woman in the United States to receive the appointment of postmaster of a postoffice of the first class. Her office at Tucson is the largest managed by a woman.

Concentrating on business management since she was a girl of seventeen, Mrs. Dickerman has had success as a business woman in the city where she now holds an important position.

"I am a firm believer that success comes to those who have tried not cried, who have worked not dodged," she declared in speaking of her experiences.

Her first appointment was that of register clerk in the postoffice which she now heads. Later she served as money order clerk for five years, not recognizing the fact that there was such a thing as overtime in that or other work she later undertook.

"I worked twelve hours a day and often fourteen but hours never meant anything to me then nor now. My one thought has always been to give any undertaking large or small, work and thought," she said.

In her opinion one of the crying needs of the world today is real business courtesy. She herself made a point of this when she conducted a wholesale and retail ice cream and confectionery store in Tucson, shipping her goods to all parts of the state.

Combined with her ability as a business woman is a charm that has made Mrs. Dickerman popular with all who know her. She is especially well liked by women and is a member of the executive board of the Business and Professional Woman's club of the state.

Heart and Home Problems

By Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty-three years old and have been married six years. My husband has worked one year during that time and I have worked every day since we were married until four months ago. Now I have a baby girl just one month old. My husband wants me to wean the baby and go back to work again.

I have never had a home to myself since we have been married. We came here five years ago and he made me move in with his mother. She is very mean to me and when I had to stop work she tried to make me go back again.

I have one sister and one brother. My brother has a family of two. My sister lost her two boys and she can't have any more. She lives in another state. She is crazy for me to give her my baby or come and live with her so that she can mother my child. My husband's mother does not like my baby and she is so mean I feel terribly.

My mother has a lot of money and I wrote her telling her about everything. She wrote back and said to stick it out as she is afraid my husband will sue her for alienating my affections. But my sister said I should leave him if I cannot get along.

He has taken every cent I have made since we have been married, and when we were married I had $800, which he also used. My mother and sister have kept me in clothes and they made all the baby things for me and gave them to me.

I think a divorce is very bad, but I feel now it would be better than having to support five people. He has two sisters, twelve and fourteen years old, who live with his mother. His father lives in another state and has property, but his mother will not live with him because he will not come here. Not one in the family is sick. It seems as if my husband does not care for me except to support him and his family. I would surely be happy if we had a little home and he would get to work like other men. What shall I do?

BROKEN-HEARTED.

Divorce your worthless husband and go to live with your sister. It is ridiculous for you to go on as you have been doing working hard without any returns for your efforts. I cannot understand your mother's position in the matter, because she ought to want you free from such a husband regardless of money. There is no chance in the world that your husband could collect from her because she has alienated your affections. Any court would see that he is entirely to blame for the separation.

For the sake of your baby go to your sister, where you and your child are wanted. It would be bad for the child to bring it up in the home where it now lives.

To expect your husband to work and make a home for you like other men is useless. He has proved himself to be entirely unworthy and you can never expect anything from him that would bring you happiness.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a very dear girl friend. We are both in love with the same boy and we sometimes quarrel over him. We have both quit this boy now. Please tell me what I can do to gain my girl friend's friendship again and also the boy's.

WAITING.

Be friendly to the girl when you see her and invite her to come over to your house. If you have done nothing unfair to prejudice the boy against her, you will probably find her glad to be friendly again.

Let the boy go. If he wanted your friendship again he would seek it.
